Treason No. 1 Crime

But Sedition Is

Dubious Charge

Newspaper accounts tend to confuse the meaning of the words "treason" and "sedition," and Professor Zedekiah Chafetz, Jr., of Harvard Law School suggests that their definition ought to be framed and hung in every city in America.

We understand the distinction between the two words after reading an article by Albert Woodruff Gray in our trade magazine, Editor & Publisher, New York. Mr. Gray starts off by reminding us that treason is the only crime defined by the federal Constitution.

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort."

And then he quotes Thomas Jefferson's famous distinction: "Treason is when real."

Jefferson, "merits the highest punishment. But those codes extend their definitions to acts not really against one's country. They do not distinguish between acts against the government and acts against the oppressions of the government. The latter are virtues; yet they have furnished more victims to the executioner than the former; because real treasons are rare; oppressions are frequent. The unsuccessful strugglers against tyranny have been the chief martyrs of treason laws in all countries."

The foregoing paragraph is a glowing example of the tolerance and intelligence and courage that have made Thomas Jefferson's name synonymous with democracy to the earth's four corners and over its seven seas.

We need a modern interpretation of Jefferson's democratic law in a supreme court decision reversing a "treason" conviction from World War II. Justice Jackson is quoted by Editor & Publisher as follows: "The temper and attitude of the judicial convention toward treason prosecutions is unmistakable. It adopted every limitation that the practice of governments had evolved out of that political-legal philosophy to that time had advanced. The framers combined all of these known protections and added two of their own which had no precedent. They wrote into the organic act of the new government a prohibition of legislative or judicial creation of new treasons. And a venerable safeguard against false testimony was given a novel application by requiring two witnesses to the same overt act."

Tug Tries in Vain to Reach Crippled Ship

London, Jan. 4, (AP) — A U. S. destroyer reported late today a rescue tug had made vain tries, in worsening weather, to get a towline to Capt. Kurt Carlsen and his crippled freighter Flying Enterprise.

The message followed hours of silence from the destroyer — the John W. Weeks — which earlier had reported it might take Carlsen off his wallowing vessel "sometime today."

The Weeks is standing by the freighter and the rescue tug tumbled about 300 miles west of England's southern tip.

Its second message of the day was timed off at 11 a. m. (5 a. m. CST), but did not reach U. S. Naval headquarters in London until nearly 4 p. m. U. S. said:

"Weather conditions worsening. Wind southwest, force 22-27 knots, sea moderate to rough, sky overcast, intermittent rain squalls, barometer 29.92 steady."

"Flying Enterprise now on a northwest heading and taking seas on the exposed main deck and deckhouse."

"Tug Tarnoff has made five unsuccessful attempts to pass messenger line to Capt. Carlsen in the bow and is now going to try putting a line over the stern."

The Weeks gave no explanation of its earlier report that it might take Carlsen off the cracked, listing ship where he has been defying storm-tossed seas alone since last Saturday.

Meanwhile the British government weather forecasting service reported at 3 p. m. that it had issued gale warnings for the vicinity of the Flying Enterprise.

Gale winds — which have velocity of around 50 miles an hour — obviously would seriously imperil both the Tarnoff's rescue operation and the crippled freighter itself.

The lonely vessel of Capt. Kurt Carlsen aboard his broken ship appeared near at hand. The U. S. Destroyer John W. Weeks, which is standing by the Flying Enterprise, radioed today "believe possibility we will take Captain Carlsen off Flying Enterprise sometime today."

A spokesman for the tug operators said this did not necessarily imply any new danger for Carlsen. Continued on Page Six

Civic Group Commends Old Council

The following installment was held by the Civic Improvement Association:

At a recent meeting of the Hope Civic Improvement Association a committee was appointed to submit to the final session of the old city council a letter of commendation for the outstanding accomplishments of the administration.

The committee, however, unintentionally and regrettably failed to function in this capacity.

I, therefore, with the authority of the organization, take this opportunity to express to Mayor Lyle Brown and our council members under his administration our sincere gratitude for the genuine interest and very generous consideration given to the various problems arising during their terms of office.

In fact, we gratefully commend the administration for the progress made through careful planning and skillful execution.

It was our privilege to visit the council meetings at various times, and present some of the problems. And what we observed was definitely a proof of that genuine interest mentioned above, in trying to promote the general welfare of our National Constitution is the primary function of our local government. And any administration that aims at fulfilling this function deserves the unconditional support of the people.

We dare to say that any equitable administration will always receive the support of the majority of the people. Any administration that has the courage to support justice and equity regardless of individual standing, whether wealthy or poor, a saint or sinner, black or white, with an unyielding integrity cannot fail in its purpose.

Certainly, every transaction has not been the best, and no institution or organization is one of unmitigated evil. But suffice it to say that progress was made, and definitely made. And we have visible proof of the same.

Now as the new year arrives, it will be accompanied by new problems and even greater problems. But new opportunities and possibilities for the solution of these problems will also present themselves.

The new mayor and council in whom the people have vested their confidence, and to whom we have pledged our support must accept the new challenge. With implicit faith in God, and a desire to do justice to all and having as its main objective to do the greatest good for the greatest number, progress is inevitable. To such an administration we pledge our support.

It is for America alone to prove that democracy can be more than a mere ideal, but a living example. Why can't we start in Hope, Arkansas?

In this article we have attempted to reflect the attitude of a large number of our citizens. The past administration has written a wonderful page in Hope's history. Let us all join hands in helping to make 1952 a banner year, and the new administration the greatest in the history of our little city.

Allies Retake Hills in Fierce Korean Fight

Seoul Jan. 4 (AP) — Allied infantrymen stormed through heavy mortar and small arms fire to retake Christmas Hill on the East-Central Korean battlefield.

Communist troops had attacked and won the hill after dark. The assault touched off a see-saw fight that lasted throughout most of the night.

The peak, west of Munsong Valley, had changed hands repeatedly since Chinese troops seized it on Christmas Day.

Along the rest of the 143-mile battle front, patrols of both sides probed and fought minor skirmishes.

The weather was milder after a week of bitter cold.

The slight clearing skies brought our Allied airmen in a limited number of flights. The Fifth Air Force flew 79 sorties against Communist supply lines and front positions Thursday and Thursday night.

The Christmas Hill assault began Thursday when about 40 Communist troops attacked and cut off the two Allied squads.

Allied troops counter-attacked after midnight against intense mortar and small arms fire. The Reds who had built up their forces, drove them back.

There Is An Old Leap Year Saying That He Who Even Slightly Hesitates Is Bossed

By HAL BOYLE
New York, Jan. 4 (AP) — There is an old leap year saying that he who hesitates is bossed.

With some three million spinsters over 25 looking for husbands, this proverb is particularly true of bachelors in 1952.

But how can any one man escape this ring of three million iron-willed ladies closed in? Any direction he keeps it looks like he will land in some girl's lap.

Yet there are ways, there are ways. I have consulted several prize old bachelors and here are their tips on how to stay free:

1. Don't try to be repulsive. The more repulsive you act to some women, the more determined they are to land you. Yes, even if you over-grease your hair and use a toothpick in public.

2. Never borrow money from a single woman. A woman invests money second only to men. If she has a financial as well as an emotional investment in you, she will track you down though you deny it with polar bears.

3. When she asks you to her apartment to look at her etchings, bring along a couple of crocheting needles and start knitting yourself some socks. Women are leery of men who crochets for a hobby. But if she still tries to force her attentions on you, well — stab her firmly with the needle. Make her keep her distance.

4. Better yet, never go alone to a lady bachelor's apartment in the first place.

5. Don't tell a girl you don't want to marry her. Just say to your mother: "Mom, that girl is after me, but I just don't feel she's the type I want to bring home to you." Mom will handle the situation from there on out.

6. Ask your own father how he

McGrath's Future in Doubt Following Charge 'Frauds' Not Vigorously Prosecuted

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP) — There was a complete administration clamp-up today on the future of Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, a wheel-horse in the Truman cabinet for the last two years.

A fair assumption based on developments yesterday is that nothing has been decided despite growing criticism that he has not been vigorous enough in cracking down on irregularities in his department.

The attorney general refused to talk with news reporters. Through a secretary, he sent out a repeated "no comment" all day yesterday on a fresh flurry of unconfirmed reports that he may shortly leave government service.

President Truman declined to answer any question on McGrath's status at a news conference late in the day, then abruptly cut off all further inquiries along that line.

Both actions were in sharp contrast to the prompt and emphatic denials made by both Mr. Truman and McGrath as recently as three weeks ago that the attorney general might resign.

The resignation reports, then and now, stem from congressional investigations into alleged federal income tax frauds, reputed attempts to influence government officials in pending cases, and the criticism of the political opposition that McGrath has not been sufficiently firm in dealing with the situation.

It is believed the President shortly will make a formal statement on McGrath, but has not decided what the statement will say.

Some hard choices are involved: The President finds on one hand a group of strident Republicans clamoring at the start of a presidential campaign year for a scalp somewhat bigger than that of Assistant Atty. Gen. T. Lamar Caudle fired by the President Nov. 16 for "outside activities" while heading the Justice Department's Tax Division.

On the other hand, McGrath is the President's long-time trusted friend, not personally accused of any irregularity, and generally credited with doing as much as any one man in getting Mr. Truman elected in 1948. McGrath at the time was chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Two Autos Are Badly Damaged in Wreck Here

On West Third early today vehicles driven by Raymond Dougan, Prescott, Route 3, and Henry Whaley, Hope Route 4, ran together. Nobody was hurt and only fender damage resulted.

Wife of Slain Negro Also Dies

Sanford, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP) — The wife of Harry T. Moore, Negro leader killed when his home was bombed Christmas night, died of a blood clot late Thursday, probably because she left her hospital bed to view her husband's body before he was buried.

Dr. George H. Starke said Mrs. Moore, 49, had been improving steadily from injuries suffered in the bombing until she left the hospital against his advice to see Moore's body in a funeral home here.

Moore, 46-year-old Florida secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was buried New Year's Day in a cemetery near his bombed home in Mims.

Mrs. Moore died without making a statement about the bombing. Both she and her husband were school teachers.

Downie Resigns

Little Rock, Jan. 4 (AP) — Assistant Arkansas Atty. Gen. Robert C. Downie has resigned, effective Jan. 15, to enter private practice.

Warrant Issued for 3 Former RFC Officials

Washington, Jan. 4 (UP) — Federal Judge James R. Kirkland today issued bench warrants for the arrest of E. Merl Young and two others charged with perjury as a result of last spring's RFC investigation.

Named with Young in the warrants were his brother, Herschel Young, and Attorney Joseph H. Rosenbaum. The three men were scheduled for arraignment today on an indictment returned by a federal grand jury Dec. 19.

When their names were called in court, there was no response, and Kirkland issued the bench warrants. Robert W. Dudley, indicted with the others, was arraigned yesterday. He is a former RFC official and an associate in Rosenbaum's law firm.

Under the bench warrant issued by Kirkland, U. S. marshals are ordered to find Rosenbaum and the two Youngs and take them into custody.

E. Merl Young, once an RFC examiner, is the husband of Lauretta Young, former White House stenographer, whose cut-rate natural royal pastel ink coat figured in hearings by the Senate subcommittee which investigated the RFC. She got the coat, valued at $9,450, through Rosenbaum, who has represented clients seeking RFC loans.

The E. Merl Youngs now operate a motel at Homestead, Fla. He is accused of lying when he denied under oath that he ever received fees for representing anyone with the RFC. The grand jury said he had.

Rosenbaum is accused of lying when he denied under oath that he claimed to be "closely connected" with former RFC Director William E. Willett and in denying certain business relations with Young. The perjury charges against E. Merl Young stem from his denial that the represented several firms seeking RFC loans. Dudley is accused of falsely denying knowledge of the gift of television sets to two RFC employees who worked on a loan or a client represented by the Rosenbaum firm.

Symington to Bow Out as RFC Director

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP) — Stuart Symington, an ace pinch-hitter for the Truman administration for six years, will bow out in a few weeks as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, probably taking a sizeable slice of top RFC officials with him.

President Truman told his news conference yesterday he expects to accept a resignation from the RFC by the handsome Symington later this month. Symington is planning to return to private business.

Indications are that resignations also will be forthcoming from a number of key officials installed by Symington in the RFC to help him with a sweeping cleanup job.

Symington and his housecleaning crew took over last May after a Senate subcommittee charged the RFC with yielding to a political influence ring with White House contacts.

Symington was out of town and not available for comment on Mr. Truman's announcement, but his close associates said the abruptness of it took them by surprise. Symington said only recently he wanted to leave the government, but had lots of unfinished problems to settle at the RFC first.

Mr. Truman said RFC policies were not involved in the resignation. Symington has been at odds, however, with some State Department officials over deadlocked negotiations with Bolivia on new tin prices.

James Allen, a special assistant to Symington, said today he expects to resign shortly. Peter L. Bukowski, Chicago banker who has been No. 2 man in the agency, stepped out over the weekend.

Solis Horwitz, RFC general counsel, said he hadn't made specific plans but indicated he might leave soon.

A quintet of other top assistants may leave along with their boss, or shortly afterward, officials said.

These officials, all with the title of special assistants to Symington, include Edward C. Welsh, economist, Don Burrows, controller, Spencer Shannon, materials expert, Ramsey Potts, military expert, and Dabney Penick, investment adviser. Shannon said he had no definite plans yet.

Symington was called a "wonder boy" six years ago when, at the age of 41, he took over millions of dollars in war surplus sales for the government.

In less than a year he was shifted by the President to assistant secretary of war and became first assistant secretary of the Army.

Chinese Reject All Plans to Swap Prisoners

Munsan, Korea Jan. 4 (AP) — The Communists made seven objections today to the six-point Allied plan for exchanging prisoners of war and rejected a new U. N. appeal for an immediate trade of sick and wounded prisoners.

In a nearby tent at Pannunjom, Allied truce negotiators asked for an explanation of reports that the Communists are shipping crated warplanes into North Korea. They also accused Red China of releasing soldiers of Korean origin from its armies in 1949 and 1950 to form the cadre of the North Korean Red Army.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang said there was nothing wrong in this. He labeled the crated plane report a "ridiculous rumor."

Hsieh, in turn, accused the Allies of holding behind their lines through intimidation with the atom bomb some 500,000 North Koreans. Both subcommittees reported no progress toward an armistice. Both agreed to try again Saturday at 11 a. m. (8 p. m. EST Friday) in Pannunjom.

The prisoner exchange subcommittee held a marathon session lasting four hours and 20 minutes. Afterwards Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said:

"It looks to me as if we are in for a long struggle."

The Reds rejected the Allied exchange plan Thursday, but Libby asked them to "study further."

Friday they specifically objected to:

1. Exchanging prisoners of war for civilians.
2. Differentiating between the release and repatriation of prisoners.
3. Neutral supervision by the Red Cross to make sure prisoners or civilians wanted to be exchanged.
4. Any form of paroles for prisoners.
5. Using a prisoner's pre-war address to determine whether he is a North or South Korean.
6. Charged that the Allied plan would not speed up the exchange of prisoners.
7. Denied that thousands of South Koreans had been impressed into the Red Army.

The Allied plan called for an exchange of prisoners on a war-for-war basis until one side or the other holds no more. The remaining prisoners would be traded for civilians, and finally thousands of displaced civilians remaining would be traded in an all-for-all exchange.

Jack Lowe, local business man, was inducted as President by Lt. Governor Mitchell Sparks. Lowe succeeds Teddy Jones retiring president.

Mitchell Sparks, Lt. Governor of the KIV MC-ARK District, was formally inducted into office by Dick Porter of Texarkana, Lt. Gov. of the Texarkana Arkansas-Oklahoma Kiwanis District.

The program featured an address by Dr. C. D. Wardlaw, Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Little Rock. Dr. Wardlaw's unusual and interesting talk was entitled "Serenity" and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Kiwanians, Kiwanis guests.

Would Pension Medal Holders

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP) — Rep. O'Toole (D-NY) said today he will introduce legislation to pay holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor $100 monthly for life.

O'Toole told a reporter that the $100 a month that medal holders now receive is "ridiculously inadequate."

Navy to Soon Convert to Missile Ship

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP) — Navy soon will begin converting heavy cruisers into the first known guided missile ships.

It was learned today that the USS Canberra and Boston, which have been in the north Atlantic will sail from the West Coast, probably within a week, to East Coast yards for a start on the conversion.

An authoritative navy source said the navy expects that extensive changes have been completed, guided missiles for the main armament will be installed. This source declined to say how much time would be needed for conversion of the cruisers for perfection of missiles for the new era batteries.

Funds for a start on the conversion work are contained in navy's current budget, it was learned.

Then, too, there are indications more class, ten of which went to the mothball fleet after World War II. The main armament of the class consists of nine eight-inch guns in two forward and one aft turrets. Both ships were commissioned in 1933.

Normally, a major conversion of a warship, such as an aircraft carrier, takes from one to two years. Conversion into a guided missile ship — an entirely new type — might require even more time.

Then, too, there are indications that at least that long may be needed to bring into practical operation a true long range guided missile for shipboard use.

The Navy announced about a year ago award of a contract for production of small missiles for shipboard use of the fleet. These are anti-aircraft type. Mr. problem in long range missiles, not in attaining distance, but in guiding over the earth's curvature.

A high official, discussing the program with a reporter, said one of the first questions was to decide on what equipment and structure should be removed from the ships. Obviously, he said, the main batteries would be stripped off, since the bombarding firepower would be in missile batteries. Big guided missiles could use either conventional or atomic warheads.

His comment also made it plain that the ship's fire control system would be radically modified. Conventional sighting and gun spotting systems will be of no use when the target may be scores of miles inland or any other distant cruising location beyond the horizon. The new fire control systems plainly must include radar devices to show the course and keep the missile on the path after launch. Entirely new storage and handling systems also will be needed.

It seemed quite possible that even the secondary armament of the guided missile ships — weapons used for their own defense — might undergo change with the anti-aircraft missiles which the navy has ordered production replacing the five-inch dual-purpose guns.

The official said, in answer to question, that if the experiment with the cruiser conversion proves satisfactory the navy might decide to use some of its mothballed battleships in the same program. It has, in addition to the 43,000-ton Iowa class battle wagons now in commission, six fast battleships of the Indiana, South Dakota or North Carolina class.

This official said he thought better to use mothballed cruisers or battleships which are complete and have all their costly propulsion machinery ready to run. That appeared to rule out the chance that the navy might turn to the partially completed Kentucky and Hawaii. The navy announced in 1946 that these ships — the former an Iowa class battleship and the latter a 27,000-ton battle-cruiser — would be converted into guided missile ships. But two years later the navy decided (for reasons of economy) because the guided missile program was taking longer than expected that the conversion project should be stopped.

Packing House Giving Workers Pay Hike

Chicago Jan. 3 (AP) — A 6-cent hourly wage increase to some 12,000 workers in 13 Armour plants outside Chicago is provided in an agreement signed yesterday by the AFL packinghouse workers union with Armour and Co.

The union, the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, signed a similar agreement with Swift and Co. last week. Both contracts are subject to ratification at a union meeting in Chicago tomorrow.

Earl W. Jimmerson, union president, said the increase boosts average wage to $1.6 an hour.

The pay hike was negotiated under a wage opening clause in a contract which expires next August.

A demand by the CIO Packing House Workers for a $3,000 a year wage minimum has been rejected by meat packers, including Armour. Union delegates will meet here Sunday to discuss possible action against the packers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jethro Jefferson of Chicago, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Jefferson.

Beene - Wallis Vows Exchanged

The wedding of Miss Geraldine Beene and Wallace Lee Beene was solemnized in New Orleans, Louisiana, at 3:30 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 22. The simple but impressive ceremony was performed in Our Lady of Good Council Church with Father Charles Korny officiating in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gissing of Houma, Louisiana, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Beene of this city.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a wool suit of soft teal blue, a small white hat with touches of gold, and white kid gloves. Her other accessories were black. Her bouquet was of delicate pink snapdragons, carnations and bouvardia.

Mrs. Irving Schexnayder of Houma, Louisiana, was her niece's matron of honor. She chose a watermelon rose gabardine suit with black accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations and snapdragons.

Harold Stephens of Bleivins served as best man.

Following the wedding an informal reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, on Louisiana Ave. In the reception room the buffet held an arrangement of white gladioli and small white mums in a low silver bowl.

The bride's table was covered with an imported linen cloth of exquisite design. Centered in the table was a three tiered wedding cake embossed with pink and white rose buds and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Around the cake was a graceful arrangement of lace fern. At either end of the table were silver candle sticks holding tall white tapers.

Small containers of pink carnations were placed at vantage points around the room.

Mrs. Beene is a graduate of Houma High School and attended the University of Arkansas and Louisiana State University where he majored in journalism. At the present time he is employed in New Orleans.

Farley Granger and Shelley Winters Co-Star in Comedy Hit Opening Sunday at Saenger

Shelley WINTERS will get her way or else, in this scene with Farley GRANGER. It's from "BEHAVE YOURSELF" RKO release.

Revolving hilariously around a young couple's adventure with a sinister group of gangsters, "Behave Yourself" co-stars Farley Granger and Shelley Winters in one of the season's gayest films.

The Wald-Krasna presentation for RKO Radio distribution has its setting in Los Angeles, with Granger and Miss Winters as newlyweds living with the bride's mother. Granger brings home a dog which insists on following him, and his bride assumes the pup is an anniversary present for her.

But the dog is owned by a crook who has been hired to play a vital part in a nation-wide racketeering deal, and when the animal suddenly finds himself mixed up with assorted criminals all anxious to get hold of the dog, and the result, provide plenty of laughs for seven patrons.

George Beck wrote and directed the production. William Demarest, Francis L. Sullivan, Marcello Gillmore and Lon Chaney head the supporting cast, which also includes the dog comedian "Archie."

Van Heflin and Evelyn Keyes Co-Star in Realistic Melodrama at Rialto Theatre Sunday

EVELYN KEYES is terrified by the gun in VAN HEFLIN'S hand, in this scene from "THE PROWLER," released by United Artists.

Gripping realism and tense drama highlight the unusual story of murder and mayhem which opens Sunday at the Rialto theatre under the exciting title of "The Prowler." Produced by S. P. Eagle and United Artists release, this suspense-packed film co-stars Evelyn Keyes and Van Heflin.

Its story, which unfolds on the screen with amazing speed and tempo, concerns the young wife of a rich and elderly man who, left alone at night, is disturbed by a prowler. Calling in the police, she makes the acquaintance of a psychologically disturbed police officer who ruthlessly plans to gain possession of the wealth she will inherit. Planning his campaign deftly, step by step, he finally achieves his two-fold objective—wealth and the woman he loves after his fashion. How this love boomerangs for him, leading up to a climax that is grimly dramatic and powerful forms the basis of a film that is as startling as it is different.

Heflin and Miss Keyes turn in fine performances in the two principal roles, and are ably assisted by a cast of supporting players headed by John Maxwell, Katherine Warren and Ericson Treacy.

The tautly drawn screenplay is credited to Hugo Butler and was adapted from an original story by Robert Thorson and Hans Wilhelm.

Joseph Yosce directed this exciting film with a knowing touch, keeping up its fine pace in such a way that audiences will hold tight to their seats until the amazing denouement is reached.

Welfare Rolls Still Not Open to Public

Little Rock, Jan. 4 (AP)—Arkansas' Public Welfare Commission has announced that state welfare rolls will not be opened to the public until specific "safeguards" are provided by the legislature.

Mrs. Henry Bethell also warned yesterday that the state may lose federal welfare funds unless legislation is adopted to deny use of the rolls for "commercial and political" purposes.

She said A. J. Altmyer, commissioner of the Federal Security Agency in Washington suggested the specific legislation.

Altmyer said the rolls may be opened for inspection without legislation as long as they are not used for "commercial or political" purposes.

Altmyer wrote Mrs. Bethell that State Legislation was required by Congress.

Mrs. Bethell also announced yesterday that more than 32 million dollars was spent by the Welfare Department during the past fiscal year.

She submitted a report to Gov. McMath pointing to the increasing number of "non-productive" Arkansas residents over 65 years of age.

She said that about 7.8 per cent of the state's population depended upon public aid at the beginning of the 1950-51 fiscal year, which was 4 per cent above the national welfare percentages.

Pay Increase for Servicemen Is Proposed

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—Legislation giving all members of the armed forces a 10 per cent increase may get a high priority in the session of Congress convening next Tuesday.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee told newsmen today he has asked the Rules Committee to give the measure prompt clearance so it can be acted on immediately. The bill already has been approved by Vinson's committee by unanimous vote and there is no foreseeable major opposition in the House.

The increase would be given to everyone in uniform, from the lowest-ranking private to the highest general. It would apply not only to pay but also to subsistence and quarters allowances. It would not be retroactive.

Retired service personnel also would receive the increase. Vinson's committee has estimated the annual cost of the bill at 800 million dollars.

It said the increases are necessary to meet cost-of-living boosts that have occurred since 1949, when the last general pay raise for service personnel was granted.

Since then, the committee said, employees in industry, business and agriculture have received pay increases, and Congress has raised the salaries of federal workers.

DOROTHY DIX Too Much Attention

Dear Miss Dix: I am a high school boy of 14, and all I want is to be a normal teenager. My parents, who married late in life, do not understand this. They insist on driving me to school in a car, supervise every phase of my school work, even complaining loudly if they feel I am not treated fairly by my teachers. They are often in my activities, but I can't confide in them. Mother, on several occasions, has repeated to her friends things I have told her in confidence. They want to travel around on week ends when I'd like nothing better than to stay home. It isn't that I don't appreciate the advantages of having a nice home and good background, but all I want is to lead the same kind of life my school mates do without starting a family quarrel.

Answer: You are not alone in your plight, Jerry. It's shared by many other boys also the sole sons of parents who married later in life. Older parents, it is true, usually gave the offspring more financial benefits than can the struggling young couple, but the advantage is frequently offset by their lack of understanding of the problems of youth.

They Lack Perspective

Naturally, the further away we get from our own youth, the more difficult it is to get a perspective on the problems of the new generation. If a couple reaches the age where they would normally be grandparents before they become parents, obviously they are in for a difficult adjustment. Their child becomes a treasured boy or girl whom every luxury must be lavished. Paradoxically this pampering is often accompanied by an overdose of discipline designed to push the youngster more quickly into an acceptance of adult standards. Naturally the result is utter confusion on the part of the child, who wants as does Jerry, a normal existence.

Changing your parents' attitude towards you is not a fight to be waged single-handed. Can you enlist the aid of a teacher or adult friend who could exert a little influence with your family? A straightforward talk on the desirability of less supervision might help. It will not effect a great change, however, your parents are too set in their own habits by now. Just realize that you have many advantages and let these benefits offset in great measure the liabilities of your position.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you think it's wrong for my boy friend to come over when I have a job baby-sitting? He is very nice and the people for whom I work don't object. However, my grandmother does not approve.

Answer: When you have a job, you also have responsibility and you will not adequately fulfill your obligations if you turn the evening into a social affair. Your employers are kind to permit your boy friend to spend the evening with you, but it is not the proper or right thing to do. Heed your grandmother's advice, have your social occasions on evenings not taken up with baby sitting.

Dear Miss Dix: Can you tell me if a real father can be kept from taking a child if it hasn't been adopted? Do I have any legal rights to keep a child who has lived with me quite some time?

Answer: Many, many court battles have been fought over cases like this, and the outcome can only be determined after legal consideration of both sides. Better get a lawyer as to just what your rights are, and how they can be protected.

1952 Plymouth Is on Display Here Today

The new Plymouth for 1952 will go on display in dealer showrooms throughout the United States, Friday, Jan. 4.

A long list of improvements in all -- has been incorporated in the engine, the brakes, the electrical system, the chassis, and to the inside and outside of the body. The new car, according to D. J. Eddin, president of Plymouth, has been improved and refined to provide "the most gentle ride, the smoothest engine performance and the greatest safety ever built -- at a price for the lowest price field."

Exceptional engine smoothness is produced through a newly designed combustion chamber, heavier pistons and longer-lasting, Plymouth's famous Safety-Flow ride has been made even more comfortable by improvements in the springing and to the Onflow shock absorbers, and the car's beauty is enhanced by numerous styling refinements.

The Plymouth has a road-hungry sweeping appearance, accentuated by changes in the external ornament. A new luxurious standard for interiors is attained with the high quality upholstery fabrics in harmonious colors which blend beautifully with the instrument and door panels.

The smart hardtop club coupe, the Belvedere, is the pace-setter in the lowest price field with its new concepts in styling and beauty. The car has gleaming, lively two-tone colors which set it apart and give it the continental look. The color used on the roof follows the Belvedere's streamlined contours around the spacious rear window and down over the rear deck. Sparkling chrome molding outlines the top and carries back to separate the two colors at their junction at the rear quarter-panel. Interior of the Belvedere is luxurious, with colorful quality fabrics and vinyl blended in perfect harmony with the shades used on the exterior. Long wearing carpeting, also in complementary colors -- rounds out the ensemble. The following color combinations are available for the Belvedere: Suede Tan with Sable Polychrome with Sterling Grey top, Mint Green with Black top.

There are ten body types in the new Plymouth line, available in an array of eight regular and two special sparkling new colors. The additional interior roominess and the many "high priced car" features for which Plymouth has been distinctive, have been retained throughout the new line.

who has been drifting for six days and nights alone aboard his ship in the storm-tossed Atlantic. The spokesman said the tug's captain may have persuaded Carlson that he might just as well be comfortable aboard either the Weeks or the Turnoil.

Until the Weeks sent Carlson home magazines last night his only reading matter was a book titled "The Law of the Sea," which he must now know by heart.

There was no official word that the Turnoil had put a towline aboard. At noon an official of the company that owns the tug said "we have received no further signal from the Turnoil since early this morning. We do not know yet whether the towline has been passed between the ships."

Cmdr. W. L. Thompson, captain of the destroyer, did not explain further his message about taking Carlson off. Earlier the weeks had been silent for several hours, leading to a belief it probably was helping in the salvage and rescue efforts.

Heavy crewmen aboard the 4,000-horsepower tug Turnoil maneuvered to put a messenger line across the waves to Carlson, who could make it fast and start the risky effort for a dozen boatmen to scramble onto his tilted freighter. Then the job of hauling huge blocks towing hawfers aboard could begin.

But fresh storm perils were brewing. Britain's official weather forecasters posted gale warnings for shipping just north of the area where the Flying Enterprise waited almost on her side, 300 miles west of England's southern tip.

They predicted gale winds up to 50 miles-an-hour, after Atlantic storms abated to 25 miles an hour yesterday. Winds already were freshening.

The Turnoil's captain, Dan Parker, radioed in mid-morning he was "too busy" to give progress reports or accept any radio-telephone calls.

The Turnoil arrived shortly before midnight last night, flipped on powerful searchlights and searched three times to put a line across.

Carlson, hanging with one hand on the starboard rail of his launch, failed to catch any of the line. The Turnoil backed off.

In Old Days Strikes Didn't Mean Much

By JAMES MARLOW

When the Jan. 31 strike in the coal fields of the United States was called off, it was a relief to many who had feared a long and bitter struggle. In the old days, strikes didn't mean much.

But in no case has Congress flatly forbidden a strike. When the 80-day T-H injunction ends, a union is free to strike. And a railroad can strike when all the Railway Labor Act machinery is exhausted.

In showing just short of fully forbidding a strike, Congress has been guided by the tradition as far as possible of as much freedom as possible for everyone, including unions and employers.

So, by stopping short of a full-on strike in vital industries, Congress has tried to let unions and employers reach agreements through free, collective bargaining.

But it gets less and less free the more the government tries to force the present steel dispute. When negotiations between the steelworkers union and the companies broke down, the union threatened a strike.

Such a strike now would wreck the defense program. Instead of using T-H's 80-day delay, President Truman stepped in and asked both sides to let the government's Wage Stabilization Board examine the dispute and make a recommendation on a fair settlement. Both sides agreed. The union put off the strike.

This is the latest example of where the government couldn't afford to let free collective bargaining go all the way—that is, end in a strike—in a vital industry.
